

(Continued from Page 2)
 I feel sure that the people of that area of the country will be able to make their own decisions. I am sure that the people of that area will be able to make their own decisions. I am sure that the people of that area will be able to make their own decisions.

NO. 3.

The question is, whether it is the duty of the President to remove a man from office who is not fit to hold the office. I believe it is. I believe it is the duty of the President to remove a man from office who is not fit to hold the office. I believe it is the duty of the President to remove a man from office who is not fit to hold the office.

ance, or why are they present to witness the count if not to see that it is fair and honest? If a failure to agree arises between the two bodies, there can be no legislative decision that the people have elected a president, and the House must proceed to act, not the Senate. The elects Vice-Presidents, not Presidential electors, are the electors.

Not only is he the right man for the place, but the time has come when the best interests of the country require that the party constitution. Such courses would be bad, and I have a firm belief, lawful

[illegible][illegible]

There is the constant assumption, I have said, that the people are the source of government under the rule of the Republic. The effort to saddle on them the burden of the responsibility for the government with home rule and with the administration of the government, and to make them feel the interference with the elections, through the machine of political parties and other organizations, is a gross violation of the rights and a serious cause for alienation from the government. It is a gross violation of the rights and a serious cause for alienation from the government. It is a gross violation of the rights and a serious cause for alienation from the government.

There is the constant assumption, I have said, that the people are the source of government under the rule of the Republic. The effort to saddle on them the burden of the responsibility for the government with home rule and with the administration of the government, and to make them feel the interference with the elections, through the machine of political parties and other organizations, is a gross violation of the rights and a serious cause for alienation from the government. It is a gross violation of the rights and a serious cause for alienation from the government.

There is the constant assumption, I have said, that the people are the source of government under the rule of the Republic. The effort to saddle on them the burden of the responsibility for the government with home rule and with the administration of the government, and to make them feel the interference with the elections, through the machine of political parties and other organizations, is a gross violation of the rights and a serious cause for alienation from the government. It is a gross violation of the rights and a serious cause for alienation from the government.

hall to such rapidly changing technology on such numerous occasions, we are degrading for ourselves and for the world. The only way to survive, and to win the world's wars, is to change, and to change as rapidly as the technology. I am not a prophet, but I think that the only way to survive is to change as rapidly as the technology. I am not a prophet, but I think that the only way to survive is to change as rapidly as the technology. I am not a prophet, but I think that the only way to survive is to change as rapidly as the technology.

This image shows a blank, aged, cream-colored page, likely an endpaper or flyleaf of a book. The paper has a slightly textured appearance with some minor discoloration and small dark spots, possibly due to age or handling. The left edge of the page is bound, showing the stitching and the inner cover material. The overall tone is a warm, off-white or light cream.

